PROJECT OVERVIEW

TravelGo | Travel Booking Website

A compact front-end concept for discovering destinations and collecting trip requests.

Introduction

TravelGo is a single-page travel booking website built with HTML and CSS.

It guides visitors from a welcome section to a booking form, destination choices, package details, and contact information.

Discover

Anchored navigation links
Hero message with a booking call-to-action
Cards for Goa, Manali, and Kerala

Plan

Required name, email, destination, travel date, and traveller fields
Native browser validation and reset

Compare

Package table lists duration and price
Responsive card layout for narrow screens
Hover styling and visible focus outline

Built with semantic HTML, CSS, and native form controls

USE AND ASSESSMENT

Applications & Conclusion

A clear starter layout for small travel services, student projects, and front-end demonstrations.

Applications

- Small travel agency landing page prototype
- Classroom demonstration of HTML forms and CSS layout
- Starting point for a booking workflow or destination catalog

How the page works

1. Visitors navigate with section links.
2. They enter trip details in the booking form.
3. Destination cards and package table support comparison.

Conclusion

TravelGo combines a simple booking form with destination summaries and transparent package examples.

Its responsive CSS keeps the cards usable on smaller screens, while built-in required fields help catch incomplete entries.

The submitted form uses GET with a placeholder action (#); production booking would need a secure backend, validation, and confirmation flow.

Scope: front-end demonstration; no booking storage or payment processing is implemented.
